

Tracy Riffon

Tracy is married with five children and ten grandchildren. She currently lives in West Virginia but lived in five other states, from coast to coast, before making West Virginia her home. Being raised in a military family, she attended seven elementary schools, two middle schools and two high schools before graduating. She suffered from depression from middle school to college while trying to work through childhood trauma on her own. Feeling tremendous hurt and guilt, she struggled with understanding who God was, and His love and forgiveness for her. Having no traditional religious upbringing, she was confused as to who God really was. Her story is one of finding love, healing, forgiveness and peace through a loving God.
